

Wilson's administration is afflicted. A softening of the spinal column.

"Now, when the lives of eighteen American citizens have been claimed by alleged followers of the erstwhile leader of the north, Villa, the American Government proposes granting the de facto government unlimited time in which to seek out and capture them. The de facto government forces knew where Villa was they wouldn't have the nerve to even go in that direction, much less to make an effort to capture him and his followers. The idea of Carranzistas running the Villistas to earth is absurd.

"We are told that Jose Rodriguez, the Villista commander, who is alleged to have been responsible for the wanton murder of the Americans at Santa Ysabel, has been captured and executed. It occurs to me that under the circumstances, more tangible proof of this procedure should be forthcoming than the mere announcement from Carranza to sources. Perhaps Rodriguez is dead, but on the other hand, perhaps he isn't. Who knows?

"The Carranzistas promised to send the body of Rodriguez to the border, but it never came.

U. S. Gathering Evidence For Claims to Be Made to Carranza for Indemnity

The United States Government is gathering evidence designed to hold Carranza responsible for the San Ysabel massacre, preparatory to filing claims for indemnity for the families of the seventeen murdered Americans.

This was the outstanding development in the Carranza situation today. Another development today was the complete acquiescence of the State Department in the demand of the Senate for all diplomatic correspondence bearing on the Mexican situation.

State Department officials are preparing this data today for presentation to the Senate tomorrow or Tuesday. Senator Stone, advised by Secretary of State Lansing that the demands in the Senate for intervention could not be checked unless the Senate was given all the information that the department has with reference to Mexican affairs.

Committee To Meet

Senator Stone has called a meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee for next Wednesday to take up all the Mexican resolutions referred to that body. It was declared in authoritative quarters today that a determined effort will be made in the Senate this week to obtain confirmation of Henry F. Fletcher as ambassador to Mexico.

There is certain to be a bitter fight in the Senate over Fletcher's confirmation, as many Senators oppose Carranza. It has been announced that they will not be parties to his recognition by voting to send an ambassador to his Government. Documentary evidence has already been obtained from American Consul Edwards at Juarez and other officials on the border showing that General Carranza, under direction of General Obregon, gave assurances that the Americans slain at Santa Ysabel could make the trip with no hindrance. Carranza gave assurances that the Americans slain at Santa Ysabel could make the trip with no hindrance. Carranza gave assurances that the Americans slain at Santa Ysabel could make the trip with no hindrance.

Files Here Searched.

State Department officials last night searched their files to determine whether a telegram was sent on January 3, instructing Consul Edwards at Juarez to ask the Carranza government to guarantee the safety of the American mining men. Edwards was quoted in news dispatches as declaring he had received such instructions.

A telegram to Edwards under date of January 3 was found, but it contained no request for guarantees, officials said. Secretary Lansing has wired Edwards for complete reports of the guarantees given him and asked Edwards to explain just what requests he made without authorization.

MAN AND DOG SANK WITH "FOOL KILLER"

Bones Found in Submarine Which Disappeared at Chicago Quarter Century Ago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A man and his dog went down with the "Fool Killer," a submarine which disappeared mysteriously twenty-five years ago. Their bones were found in the engine room of the craft when it was raised from the Chicago river last night.

Police records included no mention of the name of the submarine's last owner. It claimed several victims about the time of the World War, soon after it was launched, and passed through several owners. The submarine was christened "Fool Killer" in construction and considered a wonderful experiment when launched.

CZAR RENEWS FIERCE BLOWS IN EAST GALICIA

Vienna Admits Russian Attacks Are Most Terrific That Arena of War Has Known.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Russian assaults upon the Austro-Hungarian lines in East Galicia and on the Bessarabian frontier have redoubled in intensity. Vienna admits that the fighting is the fiercest of many months, and that the Russian artillery bombardment is the greatest that area of the war has known.

The most terrific fighting is in progress a few miles north of Czernowitz, where the combat is hand-to-hand, with bayonets. The Russians are advancing in columns twelve to fourteen lines thick. Vienna claims that more than a thousand enemy dead were counted before one Austrian brigade, but does not profess to have taken more than 212 prisoners.

Montenegrins Nearly Surrounded.

Advices received today seem to dispose of the report that the Montenegrins have laid down their arms. If an armistice was assented to by King Nicholas' forces, it evidently has been discontinued, although they are said to be more than four-fifths surrounded. A body of Austrians is marching eastward from Cetinje, while another is moving westward through the region south of Berani, where they stormed Montenegrin trenches. If the Montenegrins continue to fight rather than surrender, their escape will depend upon successful flight through the mountains of Albania.

Austrian troops have taken the town of Spizza, on the Adriatic coast, twenty-five miles south of Cetinje. Vienna reports the capture of 121 cannon, 10,000 rifles, and 12 machine guns at Cetinje. The number of cannon taken on Mt. Duvno is placed at 25. Montenegrin prisoners at 300.

On the western front there have been only artillery engagements, and they of minor importance. Lively cannonading is reported in the Champagne, the Argonne, and the Woëvre regions by Paris war office, and more desultory exchanges are announced by the London war office around Malcourt, Givency, Hill 65, and Hellebeke, along the British line.

Italians Shell Malbarget.

Rome reports that Italian aviators bombed an Austrian aviation camp at Laissovizza, enemy barracks at Chiapostano, and Dornberg and railway stations at Legatico, Privacina, and Lubiana, all the aerial squadrons returning to their bases unharmed. Vienna advises assert that Italian fliers bombarded Lubiana, capital of the crownland of Carinthia, but say no damage was effected. Vienna also says Italian artillery shelled the fortress of Malbarget for more than forty-eight hours, and claims the capture of a strongly fortified Italian position near Osclava.

The Persian town of Kengawar, forty miles south of Hamadan, has been occupied by Russian detachments. Turkish forces, according to Petrograd dispatches, are operating near Karmansa, fifty miles east of Kengawar, toward which the Czar's troops are advancing. Paris hears from Saloniki that Constantinople authorities have discovered a well-organized plot to assassinate Enver Bey and expel the Germans from Turkey. It is said many Ottoman officers were implicated and that several arrests have been made.

WIFE, HOUSE, HORSE, AND COW ALL LOST

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—Children of E. C. Davidson, attending a meeting in the church, saw that James were breaking from the upper part of their father's house and gave the alarm. The service was dismissed to lend its aid in extinguishing the flames. The attempt was in vain. The insurance had lapsed a few days before, so that the loss was entire.

Davidson is a tax collector of Cambria township. All his records and papers were lost.

He is a civilian, and had no other means of support for himself and his several small children other than the store business.

His wife died about six months ago, and during the last month his only horse and cow have died.

Skaters Have Sport On the Pond at Zoo

Many Out Despite Rough Surface Due to Hail—Better Fun Promised Tomorrow.

Two hundred skaters enjoyed the sport on the Zoo pond this morning, despite the fact that the hail of last night served to roughen the surface. Early in the afternoon the ice became slushy, but as colder weather is predicted for tomorrow, with a temperature as low as 25 degrees, it is expected that the pond will be in fairly good shape again tomorrow.

Continued winter weather is indicated in today's forecast, and ice enthusiasts are nothing for skating on the basin and the river.

SCORE THOUGHT DEAD IN ZUIDER ZEE FLOOD

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 16.—More than a score of fishermen and their families, living on the tiny island of Marken, ten miles northeast of Amsterdam, on the Zuider Zee, are believed to have perished in the flood rolled over their low dykes by the heavy storms.

A telephone message from Marken says sixteen of the islanders were drowned, and that the waves continue to roll over the little point of land. Telephone communication was interrupted a few moments after the message was received.

There is a lighthouse on the northeast end of the island, and it is thought possible some of the fisher folk sought refuge there.

Refugees from several towns inundated when the Zuider Zee dyke broke poured into Amsterdam today. Queen Wilhelmina placed the Royal Palace here at the disposal of Burgo-master Lodge, with instructions that refugees be lodged there and fed at her expense.

BITTER COLD SAVES TRAIN VICTIM'S LIFE

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 16.—Proceeding fast to the steel rails of the Central Railroad of New Jersey after he was struck by an express train near the shores of Newark Bay is declared to have saved the life of Patrick McKenna, of this city.

It was found necessary to amputate McKenna's left leg before he could be freed from the rail to which it had been frozen.

Hospital surgeons assert that freezing undoubtedly kept McKenna alive by congealing his blood and preventing him from bleeding to death.

When found this morning McKenna was without shoes, socks or underwear. His mother believes the accident came as a result of walking in his sleep.

E-2 EXPLOSION DUE TO GAS, EXPERTS SAY

Idea of Bomb Is Ridiculed and Hudson Maxim Exonerates Edison Batteries.

The naval consulting board, chairman of the board's committee on mines and torpedoes, and a member of the committee on submarines, got to the navy yard about an hour after the accident.

"I can't explain the accident," he said, "except to point out that all batteries are alike in that if they are being charged they will give off hydrogen and oxygen—an explosive mixture. The Edison battery is a little tougher in that regard."

"I know that there is a great diversity of opinion as to what the Edison battery can do. My opinion I don't wish to give. When I looked over the E-2 on December 23 she looked shipshape and her ventilators were all running well."

Similar Accidents in Flotilla.

Bearing out these opinions of the explosion are similar accidents in the United States submarine flotilla.

An explosion occurred aboard the F-4, in Honolulu harbor.

Another recent hydrogen explosion occurred aboard the G-4.

H. R. Sutphen, vice president of the Electric Boat Company, builders of the E-2, wanted it plainly understood that the builders had nothing to do with the recent experiments made on the E-2.

"The boat," said he, "was equipped with a new type of battery, though constructed for lead batteries. The most likely explanation of the accident is that it was caused by an accumulation of hydrogen gas in the battery compartments. The Edison batteries, I think, have a tendency to liberate more hydrogen than certain amount of gas in hydrogen."

Navy Department Is Awaiting Report on Submarine Disaster

The cause of the explosion on the submarine E-2, which caused the death of four men and the serious injury of ten others, will not be known until the naval investigating board completes its inquiry at New York.

The Navy Department has not received a report on the submarine disaster since 6 o'clock last night, when it was announced that a board of investigation had been appointed to determine the cause and fix responsibility for the disaster.

Submarine construction experts of the navy are unwilling to accept the theory that it was an explosion of hydrogen gas, due to defective operation of the Edison storage batteries, until they have received a complete report from the investigating board. The Edison batteries have stored severe tests designed to determine the probability of gas explosions, they declare, and they will not form a judgment until it is positively learned whether it was not some other cause than gas generated by the Edison batteries, that was responsible for the explosion.

The only official statement issued by the department, with reference to probable causes, was made by Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. His subtitle for the cause of the explosion, although, of course, the fact that it occurred under a battery deck, which means the compartment in which the batteries were stored—would seem to indicate an explosion of hydrogen gas.

"Some experiments made by the Bureau of Steam Engineering, with the Edison batteries, led the department to take unusual steps to ascertain whether or not hydrogen gas in any considerable quantity was given off by the Edison battery while it was being discharged, which, of course, is the condition when the batteries are being used to run the boat during submergence, and A. E. Davidson, an expert analyst of all marine electrical tests, by the navy, submerged tests of his boat. He reported that the hydrogen gas given off while the batteries were being discharged, was infinitesimal. In view of this fact, it is difficult to see how a gas explosion could have been the cause, and we must wait further investigation."

The department does not expect to receive a final report from the investigating board for several days. This board is composed of Lieutenant Commander Polk, Washington, commander of the receiving ship Maine, Lieut. L. M. Stewart, of the destroyer McCall, and Lieut. Rush H. Fay, commander of the submarine division to which the crew was attached.

marine division to which the crew was attached.

Officials realized that the Edison battery, of which so much was expected, is on trial. The storage battery was designed for submerged propulsion, to obviate the danger from chlorine gas thrown off by the gasoline engine now used on submarines. If in gaining immunity from chlorine gas, the Edison battery raises a new danger from hydrogen gas, construction experts declare that this fault would have to be overcome before the new battery could be adopted for general use in the navy.

Indignant at Detention of Mrs. Pankhurst at N.Y.

Leaders of the Congressional Union said they were both "surprised" and "indignant" that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was detained at Ellis Island as an "undesirable alien."

Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the union, who worked with Mrs. Pankhurst while she (Miss Paul) was at the University of London, is out of the city. "Mrs. Pankhurst held up! That is perfectly absurd," said Mrs. John Jay White, prominent suffrage worker. "They let her in before, why not now?" She has not been arrested in England since she was in this country the last time.

"Personally, I never could be a militant. But I recognize in Mrs. Pankhurst a sincere person, who has been a dynamic force in suffrage work. I realize, too, that suffrage here and in England represents two different questions."

Mrs. Jessie Hardy Stubbs MacKay said she could conceive "no earthly grounds" for detaining Mrs. Pankhurst at Ellis Island.

"Three times she has been in this country, and each time has conducted herself with dignity," Mrs. MacKay said.

Wilson Attends Services At St. Margaret's Church

The President and Mrs. Wilson attended St. Margaret's Episcopal Church today. This was the church attended by Mrs. Wilson before her marriage. The President and Mrs. Wilson accompanied the Galt pew, with Mrs. William H. Bolling, Mrs. Wilson's mother, who was at church when her daughter arrived.

After church, the President and Mrs. Wilson took Mrs. Bolling in their car to her home in the Cordova apartments, before returning to the White House. The President plans a motor drive this afternoon with Mrs. Wilson.
